CHARGES OF IMMIGRANTS AGAINST ITS OFFICERS—DID OFFICER MILLER DRINK "BUG-JUICE"?

Emigration Commissioners Taintor, Hauselt, Starr and Stephenson yesterday held an investigation in regard to the charges by the Italian immigrant passengers on the steamship Viking of bad treatment, insufficient and bad food, and filthy steerage quarters. Captain Topper stated that the Italians were filthy in their habits, making it impossible to keep the steerage clean; there was always a sufficiency of water and food, with soft bread once a day, and meat every day excepting on two occasions when fish was furnished. He also denied that there was any necessity for buying food, and said that he would have stopped such payments, if it had been brought to his attention. Hugh Campbell Cameron, a steward, gave a schedule of the daily bill of fare, which varied little from the following: For breakfast, soit bread and coffee; dinner, macaroni, butter and cheese, or soup, desicated vegetables and bread; supper, potatoes in their jackets and preserved meat, pork or fish. "Officourse with a lot of passengers like we had there was more or less complaint, but I generally attended to them," said the steward. When asked if he struck Carmine Raffelo so as to leave a sear, he resiled: "Not that I can remember; of course if I did strike him it must have been through accident." The testinony of the Italians showed that their conduct had been aggravating in the extreme. The next complaint to receive attention was by John Metalle, who asserted that somebody had stolen 370 francs from him. The evidence made it clear that the officers of the vessel were not responsible.

John Miler one of the boarding officers of the Commission, complained that when he went on board of the Viking he was thrown down stairs by two sailors by the order of the purser. Six sailors roughly dragged him into the saloon and the captain took his revolver from him and put him of the ship. Captain Topper charged Miler with being intoxicated and using language tending to excite mut DID OFFICER MILLER DRINK "BUG-JUICE"?

BRIBING AN EXAMINER OF BUILDINGS.

BRIBING AN EXAMINER OF BUILDINGS,
H. S. Mort, owner of the building at No. 751
Ninth-ave., told Inspector Esterbriok on Saturday that about two months ago be paid $5 to one of the examiners of the Buildings Bureau as the means of escaping trouble concerning a violation of the Building law. He made affidavit to this, and yesterday confronted all the examiners at the Bureau's the guilty man. It was decided that the dishonest examiner was a man dismissed recently for neglect of duty. Mr. Esterbrook told Mr. Mott that no examther was permitted to take money from citizens, and ordury. Mr. Esterotoos told Mr. Mott that no examiner was permitted to take money from estizens, and that any employé in the Bureau who did so would be desmissed; furthermore, that he considered the tempter fully as bad as the official he sought to correct.

SCARLET FEVER IN HARLEM. SCARLET FEVER IN HARLEM.

Considerable alarm has been feit in Harlem because a little girl who took part in a children's entertainment last Friday evening was taken ill with bearlet fever on Saturday. Several of the leading physicians in riarlem were consulted by a Taibune reporter yes erday. They say that there has been very little scarlet fever this spring, but as many children have now been exposed to contagion the disease may spread. If it gets into one of the many flat-houses it may reach the proportions of an epidemic.

demic.

Dr. W. de F. Day, Sanitary Superintendent, said that so far as the Board of Health knew, scarlet fever was no more prevalent in Harlem at present than in any other part of the city; it was by no means epidemic anywhere, and he knew no reason why it should become so. The measles dreaded in Harlem a fortnight ago have disappeared.

James Johnson, of No. 8 Second-st., Passaic, N. J., preferred a charge of robbery against Patrick McGrath, twenty years old, of No. 333 Spring-st., in the Tombs Police Court yesterday. The compiainant says that while walking through West-st. on Mouday evening McGrath deatt nim a violent blow on the chest, and at the same instant snatched his watch and chain. THE REWARD OF CURIOSITY.

THE REWARD OF CURIOSITY.

The attention of certain people living in the vicinity of No. 302 Eighth-st., Jersey City, was attracted some time ago by the mysterious actions of a man with a lantern who was to be seen on the roof of that house nearly every night and who seemed to have his attention engressed by the contents of a barrel standing near a chimney. It was at first thought that the man was a burglar, but as no robberies were reported in the neighborhood, that theory was abandoned. The man was seen on the roof late on Monday night, and two men living in the adjoining house determined to solve the mystery. The house at No. 302 is the home of Mrs. Fay and several bearders, among the rest Edward Crane, a medical student. Ascending to their own roof, the inquisative neighbors crossed to the roof of Mrs. Fay's house and proceeded to make an investigation of the barrel. To their intense horror they found that the barrel contained the lower hair of the body of a woman.

the barrel contained the lower half of the body of a woman.

The men went at once to the Second Presenct Station, and gave notice to Captain Edmondson of their discovery. The captain went to the house, and on investigation learned that the barrel and its contents were the property of Dr. Crane, and that he had procured them from a medical coilege in New-York for purposes of dissection. Dr. Crane said he had intended to remove all the flesh by boiling, and then to rearticulate the skeleton; but he had been delayed in the work by the cold weather. He had taken the body to the roof so that the offensive odor arising from the boiling process would not penetrate the house. The body was taken to the morrae by direction of Chief of Police Murphy, and the County Physician was informed of the affair.

A CLERGYMAN IN CHANCERY.

A bill will be presented to the Chancellor of New-Jersey to-day, praying for the setting aside of a bill of sale alleged to have been extorted by a clergy-man from a debtor by means of threats. Some time ago Charles A. Kunkel bought out a drug-store in Paterson. N. J. The money was advanced by the Rev. G. W. I. Landau, pastor of the German Presbyterian Church in Elmst., Paterson. The ciercyman went into the business as a silent partner. Kunkel was unable to meet notes which he had given to the clergyman, and he gave the latter a bill of sale by virtue of which on Monday of this week the Rev. Mr. Landau dispossessed Kunkel. The druggist now asserts that there was an agreement that he was to remain in the store on a salary as manager until May 2. He alleges that the clergyman ertorted the bill of sale by threats, entering the store in company with a policeman and telling him that he would have him locked up for debt. The Court is praved to set aside the couveyance and compet the reverend creditor to carry out the alleged agreement. A CLERGYMAN IN CHANCERY.

FLOWERS AT HORTICULTURAL HALL

PLOWERS AT HORTICULTURAL HALL.

There was an unusually large attendance at the monthly exhibition of the Horticultural Society yesterday afternoon, and the visitors were not disappointed who looked forward to another of the creditable displays which have characterized the meetings since the seciety took formal pussession of its new home. Three long tables extending through the entire length of the hall were loaded with floral treasures, while on the platform in front of the president's chair was a tastefully grouped collection or choice ferns, palms, draccenas, crotons and other horizonte plauts brightened with bloom of azaleas and flaming anti-phinums. This was furnished by Wm. Bennet, of Flatbush, and added greatly to the general effect of the exhibition.

More than fifty well-grown orchids made an attractive feature of the display, and conspicuous among them was a large specimen of Denorbum Thyrsiforum, from which drooped five long panicles of creamy white-and-orange bloom. In strong contrast with the regal beauty of these exotics was the group of modest spring flowers from Woolson & Co.'s collection of hardy perennials. Here were pots of wake-robin, wood-anemore, liverleaf, birasfoot, violet, twinkling bluets, and other natives of our own woods, with starry phlores from the Western States, the calochortus from California, primioses and snowureps in variety, and twenty-four distinct kinds of naccissus. Some of these species, and many more of the new hybrids originated by crossing the pheasant's-eye or poet's narcissus with the trumpet-flowered varieties. Mr. Havemeyer's mass of cinerarias proved what fine effects can be produced with the humblest flower, and the thirty seedling carnations grown by Hallock & Thorpe formod probably the most striking collection of these flowers ever brought together. In the amateurs' department, apart from the orchids of Geo. S. Bennett, the nost networthy feature was the collection of these flowers, cut flowers, cyclamens and the like sent by James B. Colgate. Three seven-inch

The principal prizes were taken by George Such for crehids and azaleas; by John Henderson and Peter Henderson for roses; by W. C. Wilson for roses and likes of the valley; by Hallock & Thorpe for cut flowers and carnations, and by John Smith, gardener of James B. Colgate, who carried off a dozen premiums in the amateurs division.

An audience largely composed of ladies attended the twentieth commencement of the New-York Medical College and Hospital for Women last night at Association Hall at Third-ave, and Twenty-third-st. The front of the platform was filled with bouquets sent by the friends of the granuates. Dr. Clemence S. Lozier, the dean of the college, read the annual report, which cealt largely with the general subject of co-education. Dr. Alice B. Campbell read the statement of the Beard of Trustees. She, as well as others alluded sarcastically to the "mediaval and Rip Van Winkle arguments" of Dr. Morgan Dix. The statement showed that there had been 121 graduates in the twenty years of the existence of the college. Nine of these graduates are professors in the college. GRADUATING WOMEN IN MEDICINE.

Dr. Edmund Carleton administered to the eight graduates the eath which Hippocrates is said to have assumed. The graduates, repeating the words, swore "by all the gods and goddesses" to revere those who taught them, to instruct their children in the art that tacy had learned, and each "with purity and holmess to pass my life and practice my profession."

Stephen Cutter, the president of the board of trustees, conferred the degrees on all the graduates exteept Miss Meyers, who was not old enough to be legally qualified to practice medicine. Br. WE GO FURTHER-WE THANK YOU FOR PERMITTING US TO RECOMPENSE FOR LOSS SUSTAINED; BECAUSE, IN THE FIRST PLACE, IT'S A SIMPLE ACT OF JUS-TICE; SECONDLY, IT SECURES US YOUR GOOD WILL; AND, THIRDLY, IT POINTS OUT DEFECTS OF MANUFACTURE THAT WE MAY REMEDY.
